

Abstract

. The results of the research indicate that the phase of self-financing despite all the negative aspects of financial and administrative were better than the results of sales phase free, which was characterized by severe declensions and extremism because of confusion financial suffered by the company. And therefore the need to refer the company to a system of self-financing investor, the state's potential to take strategic decisions regarding the provision of Iraq's needs of medicines and medical supplies at the same time not downloaded considerable financial burdens.